TOTAL POPULATION, INCREASE, AND DISTRIBUTION.

Population of the state.—Ohio, formerly a part of the Northwest Territory, was admitted to the Union as the fourteenth state in February, 1803. According to the Fourteenth Census, taken as of January 1, 1920, the population is 5,759,394, which represents an increase of 992,273, or 20.8 per cent, over the 1910 figure. During the same period the population of the United States increased by 14.9 per cent. The following summary shows the population of Ohio from 1800 to 1920, inclusive, together with the number and per cent of increase for each decade, in comparison with the per cent of increase for the United States as a whole:

Counties.—Ohio has 88 counties, of which 49 show increases and 39 decreases as compared with 1910. (See Table 1.) No changes in county boundaries have been made since 1910.

Density of population.—The total land area of the state is 40,740 square miles. The average number of inhabitants to the square mile in 1920 is 141.4 (see Table 1), as against 117 in 1910 and 102.1 in 1900.

Minor civil divisions.—The political units into which the counties are divided are collectively termed "minor civil divisions." The counties of Ohio are made up of 1,401 primary divisions, comprising 1,389 townships, 9 cities, and 3 villages. The secondary divisions, 807 in number, consist of 71 cities, 4 incorporated towns, and 732 incorporated villages. Each of 14 cities and 30 villages is coextensive with the township in which located, and each of 15 cities, 1 town, and 68 villages comprises parts of 2 or more townships. (See Table 2.)

Cities.—Ohio has 80 cities, of which Cleveland, with a population of 796,841, is the largest. Seven cities have more than 100,000 inhabitants each. Of

Urban and rural population.—The Census Bureau defines urban population as that residing in cities and other incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more, and rural population as that residing outside such incorporated places.

The following summary presents, for the last three censuses, figures showing the urban and rural population of the state distributed among places grouped according to specified limits of population. The classification for each census is based upon the population of the various places as shown by the returns of that census. Consequently the territory comprised within any one class of cities or that designated as urban or as rural does not remain fixed, because any given place may, through the growth or the decline of its population, pass from one class to another at successive censuses. The proportion of the population of Ohio living in places of 2,500 or more increased from 48.1 per cent in 1900 to 55.9 per cent in 1910 and to 63.8 per cent in 1920.
